

A Sales Forum

Contributed by Admin
Monday, 10 July 2006

Well, the name says it all doesn't it? ASalesForum.com is the place you want to be if you are looking for great advice on your Marketing and Sales doubts. The forum is free to join and a good place for sales people to meet and discuss their tips and tricks. It also contains handpicked articles from the industry experts from around the world.

The forum is designed extremely well into different sections for people with varying experience levels. If you have a Small Business or are a newbie into sales there are sections such as General Sales, Telemarketing, Small Business, Internal Sales, etc. For seasoned campaigners there are subforums like Account Management and New Business Development.

ASalesforum.com creates an environment where people can visit freely and feel comfortable with asking questions related to selling and get expert opinions on it.

If you are looking for sales training and advice, Sales forum is surely the place to visit.